

World Bank Tokyo Office Sponsored Youth Program

“Future of Asia and hope for the young” video seminar was held

World Bank Tokyo Office sponsored youth program “Future of Asia and hope for the young” video seminar was held on Thursday, May 24th. The keynote speech was done by World Bank Senior Managing Director, Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati (Former Indonesia's Minister of Finance).

This seminar connected World Bank Tokyo Office and 7 universities in Japan from north to south by a television conference. It was a good opportunity to have a conversation for young people in the next generation with Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati .

At our university’s public management course, we’ve connected Yoshida Campus’s

Commercial Goods Museum, 2nd floor video conference/seminar room and World Bank

Tokyo Office. 30 of the Indonesia, Bangladesh, and Afghanistan exchange student in public management course, Japanese students, teachers and staff has participated to the seminar.

Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati talked to over 200 young Japanese students about Indonesia's university teachers , career as a Minister of Finance, World Bank Senior Managing Director’s work, and self-awareness of a leader.

Many of the Bangladesh exchange students in our university’s public management course were from Ministry of Finance and has experience working for Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati. They interestingly listened to Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati’s speech.

In the question session, from our university, each of the Indonesia, Bangladesh, and Afghanistan students has asked a question. Ms. Sri Mulyani Indrawati told us about her determination on facing the financial problem in Indonesia, policy of World Bank on vulnerable country, balancing, and readiness as a mother of 2 children.
